

It's Amazing What Passes for Financial Planning These Days.

Today there are all sorts of fancy new ways to manage your finances—websites, wireless solutions, call centers, kiosks. At Hanson McClain we believe we serve our clients best by providing old fashioned, one-on-one customer service, the type that seems more and more rare these days.

Your financial future is far too important to be left to an anonymous, automated relationship. There is no substitute for excellent service.

“I Don’t Want to Windsurf When I Retire...”

These days, advertisements for financial advisors are full of youthful retirees engaged in all kinds of extreme sports. We think an active retirement is great, but we also believe choosing the right financial advisor requires you to look well beyond these slick lifestyle advertisements.

A successful retirement is about having options. The financial advisors at Hanson McClain can help you create a plan aimed at realizing those options.

Hanson McClain—providing independent advise for independent people.

Is There a Gap Between What Your Financial Advisor Is Promising and What You Are Getting?

There are many firms out there who want to invest your money for you, promising all sorts of things to win your business. The problems seem to occur once you are signed up—brokers who only call with something to sell you or who don't keep you properly informed.

At Hanson McClain we believe you shouldn't have to chase down your advisor for basic information about your finances. At any given time you will know exactly where things stand.
